

More Choice. More Competition.

Directly connect your grain with global demand through an independent, high capacity supply chain.

GrainCorp

GrainCorp is pleased to announce our expansion in Canada, to deliver more choice and competition to Canadian growers.

The creation of a fully integrated supply chain, with state-of-the-art delivery points, will create greater competition in connecting your grain with customers around the world.

A strategic joint venture between GrainCorp and Zen-Noh Grain Corporation, (a subsidiary of major Japanese Agricultural cooperative Zen-Noh) has been agreed to build this new supply chain. The supply chain connects GrainCorp's grain origination with the strong global demand of both companies.

The new supply chain will build on and complement GrainCorp's established operations in Canada, including the Canada Malting Company and the Strathmore and Bashaw operations in Alberta.

Locations

Locations for the new high-capacity delivery points have been selected to provide more choice and more competition to the grain growing regions of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

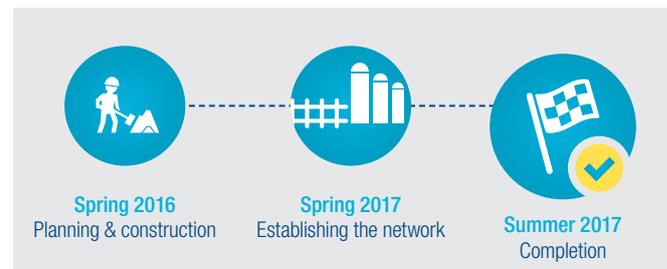

Construction on the supply chain is expected to commence in 2016, with sites progressively opened from 2017.

Speak with your local team for more information on locations and opening dates.

Local Knowledge. Global insights.

GrainCorp's local marketing team will support the joint venture to manage the origination process with Canadian grain and oilseed growers, and is licensed and bonded with the Canadian Grains Commission.
